Tue, 15 Jan 2015 08:41:04 +0000 I want to be a lawyer!Thu, 30 Dec 2012 18:27:41 +0000 Happy Holidays and all the best 2013! Peter wrote: I want to be a lawyer! here are my responses. I have my own version of my "Notes to Santa" written on post it notes. This is just to make sure I don't forget anything and to provide inspiration for you all to email a list of requests for your Santa to make. I've also included my notes below to show how to formulate your questions. 1-If you want to be a Vidaesque-Deconstructionist-Intellectual... you'll have to have a good grasp on legal concepts and a sense of humor. 2-Creative law firms are flourishing because demand for legal services is greater than supply. That means you must be prepared to write two or three law school applications, because you will not get into... 3-Therefore, ask your parents for money. Your family will love you for being smart. 4-I have to say this-get a semi-decent computer, get some tips from law professionals, study for a year and a half-two years to get good grades, and get right back on my feet. For those of you who want to be accomplished-well, forget about us. Our dreams are over. Use that money to eat mac and cheese, buy coffee, and alcohol your senior year. Get some community service hours-the best tutors and study guides aren't on the Internet. 5-Law school is just the beginning of it. Drafting isn't hard-you'll pay a fat hourly wage where it counts-on the court system. 6-Be sure to use a patent search before you file your patent and be sure to use the right country. Companies submit a patent after they receive. America has a number of examination, and ethical ways to take care of it, but don't ask me
