Arteriolar perfusion is measured by dilation of a fluorescent diameter. The setup is suitable for microvascular studies in vivo in rats. The dilation of single side-branching arterioles in the mesentery was investigated.

Arteriolar diameter histograms were generated by measuring arterioles at intervals of 150- $\mu\text{m}$  along their length. The fluorescence of a large arteriole (500-600  $\mu\text{m}$ ) in the front-face view was recorded. A video camera, placed on the right side of the animal, allowed selection of a approximately 600- $\mu\text{m}$  micro-vessel. The arteriole was superfused with buffer for 1-2 min and diameter changes were recorded for 80 s. The average diameter over the recording period (D) was plotted as a function of
