Peru is a middle-income country with income growth between 1% and 2% per year, one of the highest of Latin America. This trend has been accompanied by poor nutrition because of the recent food crisis. This study aimed to assess the nutritional status of 8- to 12-year-old children and to determine the relationship between economic indicators and anthropometric measures. A random sample of the population from 3 districts of the Cusco region of Peru was selected. Anthropometric measurements and socioeconomic data were recorded. Five percent of the sample was randomly
